

Munich Network for Health Care Research – MobilE-Net

The Network currently includes 16 partners, among these universities, research institutions, care providers, health policy representatives, and insurances.

The structural aim of the Network is to sustainably support the local network of actors working in health care.

By conducting a number of research projects, the Network has the objective to investigate and ultimately to improve mobility and social participation of persons with chronic health conditions.

The Network is establishing a curriculum of courses to strengthen health care research both in academic teaching and continuous professional education.

The Munich Network for Health Care Research is sponsored by the Federal Ministry of Education and Research.
